

GRANDSON WED ON GRANDPARENTS GOLDEN WEDDING

One of the most outstanding social events held in Tinley Park was the celebration of a golden wedding and a wedding at the same service.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hick, Sr., of Tinley Park celebrated their golden wedding anniversary last Sunday afternoon at a special service at the Zion Lutheran church and immediately after the service the wedding of their grandson, Walter Mesenbrink and Miss Nellie Block all of Tinley Park, took place.

While the church organ was softly playing, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hick, Sr., entered the church and marched up to their positions near the altar, followed by the wedding party of their grandson.

Mr. Brown Campbell sang a solo. Rev. Albert Buddenhagen preached a golden wedding sermon in German. The service was impressive.

Mrs. Hick was attired in colored voile and carried a shower bouquet of fifty Johanna Hill yellow roses. The interior of the church was prettily decorated with flowers.

At the conclusion of the golden wedding service, the organ pealed forth the strains of the wedding march, Walter Mesenbrink, son of Mr. and Mrs. Aug. Mesenbrink and Miss Nellie Ann Block, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Block of Tinley Park, took their positions before the altar while Mr. Brown Campbell sang "I Love You Truly."

Here the bridal couple was met by Rev. Albert Buddenhagen who performed the wedding ceremony.

The bride looked sweet in a gown of white satin, wore a veil and carried a beautiful bouquet of orchids and gardenias, showered with lilies of the valley.

Miss Helen Stukaa, of Chicago was the maid of honor. She was attired in green silk organdie and carried an arm bouquet of yellow roses and larkspur.

The bridesmaids were Miss Loretta Hick and Miss Annetta Schwietz. The former was dressed in blue silk organdie and carried a muff showered with roses and pink larkspur. The latter was gowned in pink and carried a muff showered with roses and delphinias.

Dorothy Block and Dorothy Stoekman were the flower girls and were dressed in peach and blue georgette and carried baskets of roses and larkspur.

The groom was attended by Jack Swisher as best man.

At the conclusion of the wedding Mrs. Ruth Freitag sang "Oh Promise Me."

The bridal party left the church amid a shower of rice. A reception was held at the home of the bride, covers being laid for thirty guests.

The dining room was prettily decorated with wedding bells and streamers.

The bridal couple left the same evening for a short trip to Michigan and returned late Monday night.

They received many gifts. They will make their home with the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. August Mesenbrink. The groom is connected with the local meat firm of Hick & Mesenbrink.

Their legion of friends wish the young couple much happiness.

Following the golden wedding services at the church, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hick, Sr., entertained fifty-five guests at their home at a sumptuous supper served on the lawn. They were presented with a gift of money. The children of Mr. and Mrs. Hick and their families who were present are: Mrs. Dorothy Olson, Mrs. Anna Mesenbrink, Mrs. Bertha Derr, Mrs. Anna Brennan, Fred, Martin and Henry Hick, Jr.

Three Year Old Boy Figures In Court Action

A three-year-old boy will be the principal character in an unusual court action to be heard June 11, when Ervin L. Bixler of Scottsburg, Ind., attempts to secure a writ of habeas corpus in the circuit court.

The boy is Donald Bixler, son of the Indiana man. At present the child is living with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Warning of Mokena, who are defendants in the suit. Bixler seeks a court order transferring custody of Donald from his grandparents to his father.

Bixler and his wife, who is a daughter of the Warnings, were divorced in October 1933, in Scott county, Indiana, and the husband claims he was awarded custody of the child, according to his attorney, A. H. Krusemark.

Mrs. Bixler had left Scottsburg but Bixler located her and their son, after a search, at her parents' home in Mokena. The petition for a writ of habeas corpus sets forth that they have refused to relinquish custody of the lad.

Chicken Stealing Mystery Solved By Negro's Confession

The confession of a young negro from Chicago Heights who has been implicated in chicken stealing raids, has cleared up the raids made on Orland and Bremen township farms this spring.

The negro in company with two other negroes were heading south on a chicken stealing expedition recently when they ran into another car near Danville. They hid some coats and bags in a nearby corn field and fled from the scene of the accident. The coats were found and letters were discovered thru which the negroes were traced. Detective Nielsen of the Prairie Farmer poultry insurance department was put on the case and when the young negro was questioned he confessed to a series of chicken thefts in this section. He said he and his pals were preparing to pull a job on the Elmer Newton farm in Orland township when they were frightened away and left coats behind.

Mr. Newton swore out a warrant and the negro was arrested. He was tried before Judge Paul Rauhoff in Tinley Park Wednesday afternoon and was fined $200 and costs.

Not being able to pay the fine he was taken to the Homewood jail and will have to work out his fine. After he finishes this sentence, he will face arrest again for running away from the scene of an accident near Danville.

The negro youth sentenced is 21 years old. He was badly scared at the trial Wednesday when some bystanders spoke about lynching.

FAMILY WASHING DESTROYED WHEN OIL STOVE EXPLODES

While Mrs. Ejnor Rasmussen residing on the old Steinhagen farm near Orland Park was doing the family washing in the pump house, a kerosene stove used to heat the wash boiler exploded and set fire to the pump house which together with the washing was destroyed. The loss was about $75 with no insurance. No one was in the pump house at the time of the fire.

The Orland Fire Department responded and saved the farm home from catching fire by the use of chemicals. The fire occurred about 9 a. m.

After the ceremony a wedding dinner was served to relatives and close friends at the home of the bride's parents.

Mr. and Mrs. McGrath are at home at 502 Western Avenue, Joliet.

A few days preceding the marriage, a miscellaneous shower was held in honor of the bride at the home of Mrs. Mervin Moore.

The evening was spent in playing buncos. Prizes were won by Miss Marion Handorf, Mrs. Lawrence Miller, and Miss Dorothy McGrath, which in turn, were presented to the bride.

May Drill For Oil Next Week; Oil Leases Signed

Considerable interest has been aroused in Frankfort and Green Garden townships over the prospects of the first oil well being sunk.

Oil leases have been secured on ten thousand acres of land in this section. The oil well promoters are well pleased with the large number of leases secured and it is understood are preparing to start drilling for oil in the northeast section of Green Garden township on spots where the possibility of oil has been indicated according to tests made last summer.

No one is being asked to invest in this venture which is being conducted by promoters who are said to be amply financially responsible. Many Frankfort men as well as of Green Garden have been working on committees whose duty it has been to interview the farmers and to secure the necessary oil leases.

A meeting was held last Friday night in the office of F. J. Kohlhaas in Frankfort to discuss the final details before drilling work is actually begun.

According to present plans it is probable that drilling operations will be started within another week.

MEMORIAL DAY

A PROCLAMATION

The Buddy Poppy Sale of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the U. S., to be conducted in the village of Frankfort on May 26, is worthy of the commendation and support of everyone. These blossoms, emblems of the supreme sacrifice of our brave boys on the field of battle, have also an added significance, as they represent the handiwork of disabled veterans in government hospitals thruout the country. Each Buddy Poppy, in its making, helps the handicapped veteran to help himself. To do all we can to help the sale of the Buddy Poppies is the slightest and easiest gesture we can make to show the men who offered to their country their lives and future welfare that we are still mindful of their sacrifice and obligation.

GEORGE HAASS
Mayor of Village of Frankfort.

A PROCLAMATION

It is a pleasure and a privilege to me as Mayor of the Village of Mokena, to extend a cordial endorsement of the annual Buddy Poppy Sale of the Veterans of Foreign Wars to be conducted on May 26. The organization is to be congratulated on the deep concern it is manifesting, both in the manufacture and the sale of these memorial emblems, for their war buddies and for the widows and orphans of those gallant soldiers who made the supreme sacrifice. I trust there will be a growing interest in this annual appeal, which gives to each one of us the opportunity of showing that we have not forgotten the sacrifices of America's soldier sons.

EDW. MARTIE,
Mayor of Mokena.

LOCAL TEAMS TO MIX; "LEFTY" SULLIVAN STAR

AT LAST! After a long-time the event of the year has finally been booked and Mokena's two baseball teams, The Aces and The Mitchell Maniacs are to finally meet. The date is Tuesday evening, May 29th 6 p. m., at Hayden's Diamond near the Mokena public school.

The imposing record of the Aces combine with the excellent field work and the dazzling slants of Cappel are enough to make any team afraid of tangling with them. However, the Maniacs have a few stars of their own. Lefty Sullivan former White Sox twirler has consented to leave his spit ball and back breaking curves at the Aces bats, and Johnny Mitchell is a former St. Philip Neri player, Buckley is a former St. Rita man and the other boys including Bennett have had quite a bit of experience on the good old diamond.

This game has created quite a future among the populace of Mokena and judging from the lineups there should be—well let's just say—a swell ball game. Outside of Lefty Sullivan the Brewery's players are all employed at the Brewery. The odds are reputed to be even, while the Aces appear to be the better of the two clubs there is talk among the wise boys that Lefty will be able to check the murderous bats of the Aces and if the Brewery gang can collect a few scratch hits they can coast along to a scant margin victory. However if the Aces get to Sullivan and can keep the bats of the beer boys swinging at the ozone or to an easy out victory undoubtedly will go to the Aces.

In order to promote interest in the game tickets will be placed in every business house in town entitling each purchaser to one ticket. He will write down what he thinks the score will be and if he guesses exactly the right score he will receive an eighth barrel of MITCHELL'S BEER free. In case of a tie a duplicate award will be made. Only 500 tickets are available so please get yours immediately. Only one ticket to each purchaser.

The winner will be announced in next week's News-Bulletin.

The probable lineup: Aces—S. Lauffer, lf; Marti, 3b; Muehler, 1b; McGovney, 2b; E. Walsh, cf; W. Muehler, rf; G. Lauffer, ss; Gilmore, c; Cappel, p.

Maniacs—Buckley, 2b; Heiman, 3b; Jennings, ss; Bennett, cf; Gomorra, lf; J. Mitchell or Starke, rf; Hentsch, cf; Mitchell, 1b; Sullivan, p.

Fifteen minutes after arriving, the Orland department had a call to a fire in a third story flat at 56th and Michigan. Another department had also been called and between the two the blaze was soon put out. The Orland department returned home after mid-night.

WRIGLEY'S GUM

The WEDDING MARCH MURDER

CHAPTER XIII—Continued

by MONTE BARRETT

Copyright, 1933, by the Bobbs-Merrill Co.
WNU Service.

"Yes. We didn't think we'd have much chance of forgetting what happened with a detective following us around," exclaimed Rylie defiantly. "That's the whole story. I took him out in the country and lost him. But I didn't take him toward Westport, because I didn't want him stumbling into us again, after I met Callis. I opened up the car, after I passed the city limits. I knew he couldn't keep up in that taxicab."

"After he had dropped out of sight, I zigzagged up and down a few side-roads, and then headed for Westport in a wide circle. I was on my way to meet Callis when I had the accident. I didn't want to drag Callis into this. I didn't want some detective asking her personal questions. She had no more to do with the killing of Franklin than I had."

"What about Webster Spears?" This time Peter turned to the girl. "When you came to see me, I thought you were worried about him, too."

"There was no way we could help Web by remaining here," Rylie answered for her.

"I'm asking Miss Shipley." "Rylie is right. We considered Web, but realized that remaining in the city wouldn't help him."

Until they were dismissed, Rylie to be taken back to police headquarters by a waiting officer, Callis to return to her home, the young couple stoutly maintained their story. No amount of questioning by Kilday could shake it.

"Just the same," growled the sergeant after they were gone. "I know I've got the murderer under arrest. It's either Webster Spears or Rylie Carmody. First I thought it was Spears and that Carmody and the girl were trying to help him. Then I thought it was Carmody and the other two were trying to help him. Now I don't know which it was, except that one of the two is guilty."

"And you think Callis Shipley knows?" Peter inquired.

"Of course." "Well, I don't," Peter spoke with conviction. "Ever since my interview with her the other afternoon I have been convinced that, personally, she is innocent, although Carmody and Spears may be guilty. But if they are, she doesn't know it."

Kilday did not share this conviction. He reviewed the evidence against each. "Spears was in love with Doris Carmody and was moving heaven and earth to keep her from marrying Jim Franklin. We know he told Rylie about Choo Choo Train, hoping that he would stop the wedding. Some one telephoned Ambrose Carmody telling him about the actress. First Spears denied that. Now he admits making the call. Some one telephoned Choo Choo and told her to be at the church. Spears still denies he did that, but I don't know whether to believe him or not."

"He left the church, just before the murder, inquiring about Rylie Carmody and declaring that if he were there, there wouldn't be any wedding. Later he denied making that remark but we've since been able to prove that he did. That night Callis Shipley visited Spears' home. Both she and Spears denied that visit, at first. Now they both admit it. The girl told us what Spears said when he left the church. Then she denied it. Now she admits it."

The detective was restlessly pacing the floor as he summed up the case. "You can't tell me innocent people were trying to deceive us this way. That isn't natural. They had something to conceal. What was it? Well," he smiled significantly. "Spears had a motive for the crime and he can't account for his time at the hour it was committed."

"Then take Rylie Carmody. He admits trying to stop the wedding, after Spears told him about the actress. We know he quarreled with Franklin in the study. He left, but we know he came back, because Callis Shipley rode home with him. Either the girl told him there had been a murder or he already knew it, apparently, when he returned to the church. If she told him, how did she know? If she didn't tell him, how did he know? Then he gives a detective the slip in time to search Franklin's apartment and attack you in that office." He shrugged. "Oh, I know we don't have any proof of that—yet. But he escaped in time to do it, and he can't give a good reason for shaking my detective the way he did. He turns up with an alibi full of holes, and tries to explain his battered appearance by telling us he was in an automobile accident. Huh, I've got enough on both of these birds to send them to the chair, and one of them will talk before he takes the trip. The fear of that is the best cure for a silent tongue I know."

"But, Kilday—" Peter began.

"Oh, I know. You're going to hand me that theory that Spears couldn't have taken the dagger from the wall—at least not while he was struggling with Franklin. Well, perhaps he couldn't, but maybe he slipped in there and got the knife before Franklin saw him. Maybe it was Rylie. He's taller. There are a lot of things that don't fit yet, and that may be one of them. But they'll all fit before I'm through."

"That wasn't what I was going to say," Peter again interrupted. "If either Rylie or Web Spears committed this crime, the motive seems to be obvious. It was to keep Franklin from marrying Doris Carmody. And if that was the motive, why should either of them have visited Franklin's apartment or office? I can't make that fit."

"Not unless Callis Shipley is the woman in blue you've been talking about," Kilday persisted doggedly.

"But she isn't," exclaimed Peter. "I'm sure of that. Think back, Kilday. Our woman in blue went there to prevent the wedding. Dan Bullis heard part of her conversation with Franklin. She only consented to leave the church after Franklin promised her that his marriage was going to make no difference in their relationship. If Bullis told us the truth about that conversation, and I see no reason why he shouldn't, then that woman is heartbroken over the murder. Does Callis Shipley act or look like a woman who is grieving over Franklin's death? Not to me, she doesn't. Her one thought, throughout the whole affair, has been for Rylie Carmody. No, she is not the woman in blue. And if she isn't, then I say Rylie had no reason for visiting that apartment. I have another reason for being convinced that he isn't the man with whom I struggled in the apartment. A few minutes ago, the boy lunged at you, here, in a rage over a question asked of Miss Shipley. You caught him by the wrists and held him, easily. I am sure you couldn't have done that with the man I ran up against the other night. That fellow was far more powerful. Whatever doubt lingered in my mind about Carmody's innocence was dispelled then. He is innocent. I'm as sure of it as I am of this broken leg of mine, and it's paining me a lot."

"If we accept this theory of yours it looks as though we're farther from a solution than ever," complained Kilday. He drew moodily on his story.

"You've made a good point," he admitted, "but if we follow your lead we're right back where we started. I haven't even got a good guess left. Webster Spears was under arrest the night of your fight in the apartment. If that has a place in the crime, then it couldn't have been him."

"It has a place," declared Peter with conviction. "The man I fought was the murderer. I'm convinced of that."

He glanced at Kilday, a whimsical smile playing about his lean lips. "Have you ever had to lie in bed for three consecutive days?" he inquired. "Try it some time, when you have a particularly knotty problem to solve. I recommend it. You can do a lot of thinking."

The detective was not misled by the apparent inconsequence of the novelist's remark. He leaned eagerly forward. "Have you doped something out?" he demanded.

"I think I have."

"You mean you know who killed Franklin?"

"Perhaps," declared Peter. "You might call it a guess, because I still lack definite proof, but there's only one person who could have done it. It was the same fellow who helped me along when I took that dive through the window the other night."

"You see, Sergeant," he continued, "we have been hitting pretty close to the truth almost from the first. Ever since I've been lying here, I've been going over the evidence, trying to make it fit. I couldn't get away from that woman in blue who visited Franklin in Doctor Abernathy's study, just before the crime. The very fact that she was the only one of the visitors that we couldn't locate, in spite of all our efforts, made me doubly suspicious of the part she played in the crime. Still, that was only supposition, until the night Franklin's apartment was searched. The prowler passed up a few jewels of value, while ransacking the place. It seemed obvious that he was no ordinary thief and that his search had some connection with the crime. But we have been over that. I need only point out that our previous search of those rooms made us reasonably certain that nothing had been found there. I felt sure, then, that the search would be extended to the office. Whatever the murderer wanted, he wanted pretty badly."

"That was a lucky hunch, although it nearly proved the finish of me. And it proved another thing—this was a hot trail."

"The murderer had admitted himself to Franklin's apartment with a key—a key given him by, or taken from, the woman in blue or Choo Choo Train. We can discover nothing against Choo Choo, so let's follow up the other lead. If this key came from the woman in blue, the motive for the crime was established, but I was still as far from identifying this woman as ever, apparently."

Peter brushed his hand wearily across his eyes. His face showed the strain the events of the afternoon were imposing upon his limited strength.

"Then there is the matter of the phone to Choo Choo Train. Just before the wedding," he continued presently. "She thought it was Fletcher calling, by Franklin's order. We know that Franklin didn't tell Fletcher to make such a call, because Nick Royce tells us of the man's surprise when she appeared at the church. Fletcher denies he called. Then who did call?"

"Webster Spears!" Kilday suggested. Peter shook his head. "I think not. Spears was interested in getting the Carmody family to stop the wedding. Besides, he has admitted his conversation with Rylie and his anonymous call to the elder Carmody. But he denies calling Choo Choo. What reason could he possibly have for not telling the truth on that score, as well?"

"No, it wasn't Spears. The murderer called Choo Choo. He did it because he knew her relationship with Franklin, of course, and hoped that her presence at the church would divert suspicion from himself. I believe that was the only reason she was called. Of course, this tells us very little. It does reveal that the man knew Franklin well enough to know his habits. But half of New York knew of his infatuation for this actress. Nevertheless, this man was no casual acquaintance. He had either visited in Franklin's apartment, or talked to him by telephone, there."

"How do you know that?"

"He knew Fletcher's name and was familiar enough with his voice to imitate it when he talked to Choo Choo over the telephone," Peter explained. "A mere casual acquaintance couldn't have done that. Besides that, we have another proof of the fact. When the murderer entered the rear door of Doctor Abernathy's study, Franklin turned to meet him. He was not surprised to see his visitor. If he had been, it would have been only natural for him to have made some exclamation that would have attracted the attention of Nick Royce, standing only a few feet away. He didn't. Royce never knew when the murderer entered. Franklin is bound to have considered his murderer one of his intimate friends."

Peter paused to light a fresh cigarette and inhaled it, deeply, several times, before continuing.

"There is another very vital clue which we must not overlook. That is the revolver. Unless we believe that Franklin thought his life was in grave danger, it is ridiculous to suppose that he carried a revolver to his own wedding. I prefer to think that he had no warning of his danger. In the first place, if he had, he would never have permitted his assailant to approach him near enough to stab him, without firing. He was stabbed from in front, remember, not from behind. Again let me remind you that Royce was only a few feet away in the next room."

"No, if Franklin had been armed, it would have been because he suspected danger. And in that event, he would have used his weapon when the murderer entered the room. I am convinced that the revolver was carried to the church, not by Franklin, but by the murderer himself, who intended, by slaying the man with his own gun, thus to escape detection. You will argue, of course, that he used the knife, instead. I believe that was an afterthought, suggested when he saw the knife hanging on the wall as he entered the room. It suggested a silence, and greater time for escape, that he could not hope for if he used the gun."

"Another point which puzzled me was why the revolver should have been discarded in the shrubbery of the garden. Of course, the murderer had already taken the precaution to leave Franklin's own finger-print upon it, but nevertheless, this revolver has been a significant clue in the case, and marks an apparent mistake on the part of the man we seek. My only explanation for this action is that the murderer joined the throng in front of the church, after the crime, seeking safety in the crowd, rather than in flight. I think it probable that he even entered the church. That is quite likely, as I am sure his acquaintance with Franklin was such that he had been invited. That being true, he could not afford to have the murdered man's revolver in his possession. That explains this point, but it does not explain how and when he obtained that revolver."

Negro Tobacco Pickers
Traveling through the tobacco districts of the South one sees many old log cabins, through the corner of which runs a flue constructed of rocks, mud, cement or any other handy material. In front, opening to the outside, is a fireplace or stove of this same material, says a bulletin of the American Gas association. When the tobacco leaves are cut, the negroes hang them in these cabins and fires are maintained day and night until the tobacco is dry. These cabins are still used and the night fires with the negroes singing and dancing about are most picturesque.

Lesson for May 27

THE LAST JUDGMENT

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 25:31-46.
GOLDEN TEXT—For we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ; that every one may receive the things done in his body, according to that he hath done, whether it be good or bad. II Cor. 5:10.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Doing Things for Jesus.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The King's Test of Service.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Serving Christ by Serving Others.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Christ Our Judge.

A more correct topic for today's lesson would be The Judgment of the Nations. According to the legitimate textual and contextual significance it is the judgment of the living nations, which still lies in the future. The idea of a general judgment is a fundamental error. Doctor Pentecost well says, "It is a mischievous habit that has led the Christian world to speak of the judgment as being one great event taking place at the end of the world, when all human beings, saints and sinners, Jews and Gentiles, the living and the dead, shall stand up before the great white throne and there be judged. Nothing can be more wide of the Scriptures."

The Bible speaks of several judgments, differing in respect to the subjects to be judged, the place of judgment, the time and result of the judgment. The judgment which we are considering today is not that one set forth in Revelation 20:11-14. It precedes that one by at least 1,000 years. A definite analysis of this lesson will show how entirely distinct this judgment is from the final judgment.

I. The Judge (v. 31).
He is the Son of man, the one who came and died to redeem the human race. At this time he is seen clothed with majesty and power sitting upon his throne acting as judge. There is no judgment, so far as sin is concerned, for those who now accept Jesus Christ as their Saviour (John 5:24).

II. The Time of Judgment (v. 31).
This judgment will take place when the Lord comes in his glory accompanied by a retinue of glorious angels, and after he has gathered the elect remnant of Israel. There will be no resurrection in connection with this judgment.

III. The Place of Judgment (v. 31).
The prophecies of Joel (2:1-17) and Zechariah (14:1-5) show that it will be in or near Jerusalem. The angel said to Mary, "Thou shalt call his name Jesus. He shall be great and shall be called the Son of the Highest, and the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David. And he shall reign over the house of Jacob forever; and of his kingdom there shall be no end" (Luke 1:31-33). As David was a literal king and reigned at a literal place, there shall be at that time a literal judge occupying a literal place of judgment.

IV. The People Judged (vv. 32-45).
It is expressly declared "before him shall be gathered all nations." They will be the nations left upon the earth after the church has been translated (I Thess. 4:16, 17). These are the nations to whom the gospel of the kingdom shall be preached just prior to the coming of the end of this age. "And this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations; and then shall the end come" (Matt. 24:14). This gospel is distinct from the grace of God which is now being preached. The preachers of this gospel will be the Jews (Rev. 7 and Rom. 11). They will move among the nations of the earth with the startling news of the Lord's approaching kingdom.

V. The Issue of the Judgment (vv. 32-46).

Some of the nations will gladly receive the message of the kingdom and most kindly receive the King's messengers. Others will persecute them, thrusting them into prison. Here those who receive the message will visit the messengers of the King and provide for their wants. At this time the judge will separate the nations, placing the sheep on the right hand and the goats on the left. The sheep are those who give proper treatment to Christ's brethren, the messengers of the gospel of the kingdom. The goats are those who reject the message and maltreat the messengers. If these three classes, the sheep, the goats, and the brethren be kept separate in our thinking all confusion will be avoided. The sheep will enter upon the inheritance of a prepared kingdom. The goats will go into everlasting fire prepared for the devil and his angels (v. 46).

That Body of Yours

JAMES W. BARTON, M. D.

Hernia Is Very Common

THE fact that more men than women are afflicted with hernia, or rupture as it is commonly called, is sometimes blamed on sport or the more active life of men.

However, reliable figures show that while about four times as many men as women undergo operation for hernia, nevertheless hernia is found about six times as often in infant boys as in infant girls.

This then proves that while the condition may be brought about by sport or heavy lifting, in a great majority of cases it is a weakness in the abdominal wall itself that predisposes or gives the tendency to hernia.

And it is this point that should be remembered when operation is being considered. There is no question but that operation is the ideal method of correcting the condition; that is the radical operation which is now often done under a local anesthetic.

Another operation coming into some favor now is what is called the injection method whereby scar tissue is formed which seems sufficient in some cases to strengthen the abdominal wall enough to prevent the hernia. However, this method has not yet met the general approval of surgeons.

If the operation is performed does this guarantee that the hernia will not occur again?

Unfortunately the hernia does occur after operation, not because the operation was not done properly, but because of the natural weakness or tendency of the abdominal wall to sag or rupture.

There is no question but that a properly fitting truss is a great boon to the wearer and affords a good measure of safety, but in those cases where an operation has a reasonable chance of success (and most cases have a reasonable chance) it would seem only like good sense to be free of the truss and be able to do the things other individuals can do.

Even in those cases born with weak abdominal walls, about 50 per cent of the cases who undergo operation have no return of the hernia.

Your best plan if you have a hernia is to undergo an examination by your family doctor and a surgeon, as your age, your occupation, the condition of your abdominal walls must all be taken into consideration.

If operation is not considered advisable a well fitted truss and the avoidance of heavy work should prevent further trouble.

Curing Cases of Mental Conflict

WHEN statistics show that at the present rate of increase in mental ailments 50 years from now half the civilized world will be confined to mental institutions with the other half taking care of them, we must all give this some thought.

The world has gone through a lot of trouble in the past 20 years and mental illness must be expected, but the very large number afflicted has brought so much attention to the matter that new methods of treatment are having, and will continue to have, a most helpful influence in curing many cases.

In the first place children that are a little "different" are being treated and will become men and women able and willing to take their normal or natural place in the world. This means prevention of mental ailments.

And even in adults many cases now confined to mental institutions are being cured by painstaking treatment. After all physical defects—teeth, tonsils, eyes, ears and other parts—are corrected, careful questioning of the patient is undertaken.

Dr. W. H. Cassels, of Provincial Mental hospital, Ponoka, Alberta, states that many cases are due to some "conflict" in the patient's mind. He puts these conflicts into three classes: (1) the actual condition existing when the patient has done something wrong, or which conflicts with what he thinks is right; (2) where the patient desires something different from his present condition although the condition might seem normal or satisfactory to most people; (3) where the patient's standards of living are so strict that he is in conflict with them because it is almost impossible to live up to them. This is called the "rigid" type of personality.

What are the methods by which many of these cases are cured?

In the first case the patient is shown that he is only human, and that to err is human; that mistakes are forgivable.

In the second case where desire for a different condition exists his unsatisfied desire is directed into other channels. For instance a bereaved mother may give vent to her feelings by charitable work.

In the third case the patient is shown that his standards are too strict for the world in general and that he'll have to give and take to a greater extent in order to get along with his fellow men.

Nice Point of Conduct With Balkan Feudists

Albania represents the full flower of the Balkan tradition, says a correspondent in the American Mercury. "If you kill me, my brother kills you, and so on for generations." King Zog was shot at. He was philosophical. A pot-shot now and then was only to be expected. In Vienna many such shots never take effect.

A curious nicety about Albania is that nobody takes a shot at you if you happen to be in the company of a woman. The rule is seldom violated, and never by an Albanian, who regards himself as a gentleman. Some time ago an American writer went hiking in Albania with a native. The Albanian was a handsome lad with several counts against him. As the two were walking along, he was suddenly fired upon. Afterward, there was a handsome apology, and it was explained that though the Albanian was accompanied by a woman, she was wearing knickers.

After the Zog affair in Vienna, the cafes had the jitters. The Imperial cafe was particularly touchy. I remember dropping in one morning. I had, as usual at that season, hay fever. As I pushed open the door I sensed suddenly the oncoming of a violent sneeze, and reached back for my hip pocket. Instantly seven men jumped in all directions.

MOKENA ACES NEWS
Mokena won its second game of the season, Sunday, scoring over Tinley Park by 5 to 3. The boys surely played a good game. Cappel and Brown were the batteries.

At the beginning it seemed that the boys were full of errors but finally buckled down and played a fine ball.

We had to pitch himself out of some pretty bad holes. Walsh caught the fly ball that ended the game, and did he feel good! Butch surprised everybody, even himself, by getting two hits. Cappel and Butch batted .500 with Willie and Dodo stringing along with .250. The rest of the boys couldn't find that hole in the bat, but they all helped with their sacrifices and fielders choices.

Jimmy took a hard drive at one and forgot there was no water there. Shorty was running around trying to catch foul balls that were a mile away. Tubby picked off a line drive that rather took his wind away and made him puff.

In the midst of all this, the ole manager was struttin' around with a pipe in his mouth and telling the boys they could sure play ball. The fact is, they can.

Well folks, the team surely appreciates your turning out to see them play and they hope that you were satisfied with the outcome.

Don't forget next Sunday's game with the "Atlas Tires" at Mokena at 2:30 p.m. DST. We'll be waiting for you and will try to win another game. So if we all rush thru the dinner dishes, we'll get there early.

It costs money to be sick. You see it directly if your pay envelope is short. You lose out on some important work if you live on a farm or if you are one of the few who are not docked for lost time. You can't afford to show up on the job unless you are feeling fit. The boss wants results—not excuses.

How many times do Gas on Stomach, Headache, Sour Stomach, "That Tired Feeling," That "Morning After" Feeling, Neuralgia, Rheumatic, Sciatic, Muscular or Periodic Pains keep you at home or interfere with your doing a full day's work?

All these troubles are caused or made worse by too much acid in your body. To correct this condition take

"We're on a vacation in our own Home"

... no more shoveling
coal or hauling ashes.
Gas heat is such a relief!"

Mr. and Mrs. Seebausen with their children,
Charles, Marian, and Donald.

An interview with Mr. Charles Seebausen and family, 21 Linden
Avenue, Crete, Illinois

LOOK at a family free from the coal shovel-free from soot, dust, dirt and furnace worries! No wonder they say it's like a vacation since they installed gas heat.

"Gas heat is such a relief," says Mr. Seebausen. "No more hauling ashes and poking fires. And the house stays clean from one month to the next, because there's no soot or dirt when you heat with gas."

"Gas heat is healthier, too. With our old heating unit the house was always too hot or too cool, and sharp fluctuations in temperature often gave the children colds. But gas gives uniform, even heat day and night."

Low rates . . . you invest nothing to try

Think of it—rates for heating with gas are now one-half of what they were during the 1930-31 heating season. And—you can try gas heat without investing one cent! We will install a burner in your present furnace or boiler at our own expense. You pay only the rental on the equipment, which amounts to $3 a month in the average home. This charge is included with the bill for the gas you use. You try it for a month, two months, a year. And if within the year you find that you are not completely satisfied with gas, we will take it out at our expense and replace your former heating equipment in good workmanlike order. But—if you decide to keep gas heat—as we think you will—the rental you have paid applies on the purchase price of the equipment.

Act now!

Don't delay! You will never regret accepting this liberal offer on gas heat. Telephone for full details.

STARTLING TRIAL OFFER!

To prove that every home can afford to heat with gas, we'll install it at our expense . . . and remove it at our expense, if you don't like it.

YOU INVEST NOTHING!

Without ONE CENT of investment by you, we install the most modern burner in your furnace or boiler. If you are satisfied, it stays. If not—and you are the sole judge—out it comes and your former heating system is re-installed—AT OUR EXPENSE. We make this offer because of our confidence in the perfection of gas heat.

Charles, Donald, and Marian Seebausen
now have this game room in the basement—thanks to gas heat.

ESSENTIAL!

Dreary days and uncomfortable nights might follow a cessation of your gas service.
You could, of course, live without this service but modern life would certainly be lacking in many comforts which have almost become necessities.

This important service is constantly at your command, 24 hours each day, for cooking and heating and other purposes. This service must be maintained. It has become so essentially a part of living.

And from the standpoint of economic common sense, the price you pay for this service must cover the production and distribution of it, plus a reasonable return on the money invested to make it possible.

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

PETER FINDS A FRIEND IN TROUBLE

SEEING Farmer Brown's Boy coming through the Old Orchard, Peter Rabbit decided that that was no place for him, so he scampered for the Green Forest. Lipperty-lipperty-lip. Just within the edge of the Green Forest he caught sight of something which for the time being put all thought of Farmer Brown's Boy out of his head. Fluttering on the ground was a bird that he had never seen before. It was about the size of Redcoat the Blackbird. Wings and tail were pure black, and all the rest was a beautiful scarlet. It was Redcoat the Tanager. At first Peter had eyes only for the wonderful beauty of Redcoat. Never before had he seen Redcoat so close at hand. Then quite suddenly it came over Peter that something was wrong, and he hurried forward to see what the trouble might be.

Redcoat heard the rustle of Peter's feet among the dry leaves and at once

"What is it, Redcoat? Has Something Happened to You?"

began to flap and flutter in an effort to fly away, but he could not get off the ground.

"What is it, Redcoat? Has something happened to you? It is just Peter Rabbit. You know you don't have anything to fear from me," cried Peter.

The look of terror which had been in the eyes of Redcoat died out. He stopped fluttering and simply lay panting. "Oh, Peter," he gasped, "you don't know how glad I am that it is only you. I've had a terrible accident, and I don't know what I am to do. I can't fly, and if I have to stay on the ground some enemy will be sure to get me. What shall I do, Peter? What shall I do?"

"Right away Peter was full of sympathy. 'What kind of an accident was it, Redcoat, and how did it happen?'" he asked.

"Broadwing the Hawk tried to catch me," sobbed Redcoat. "In dodging him among the trees I was heedless for a moment and did not see just where I was going. I struck a sharp-pointed dead twig and drove it right through my right wing."

Redcoat held up his right wing and, sure enough, there was a little twig sticking out from both sides close up to the shoulder. The wing was bleeding a little.

"Oh, dear, what ever shall I do, Peter Rabbit? What ever shall I do?" sobbed Redcoat.

"Does it pain you dreadfully?" asked Peter.

Redcoat nodded. "But I don't mind the pain," he hastened to say. "It is the thought of what may happen to me."

Mother's Cook Book

SEVERAL GOOD THINGS

FOR a warm day try the following cooling and delightful dish:

Jellied Consomme.

Dissolve two tablespoonfuls of gelatin in one-fourth of a cupful of cold water. Dissolve in one quart of hot consomme. Pour into bouillon cups and chill, or pour into a shallow pan and when chilled cut into cubes or beat with a fork, before serving in the cups.

Cucumber Jelly.

Grate enough peeled cucumbers to make a pint, season with salt, pepper, paprika, olive oil and vinegar—two of oil and one of vinegar. Add one teaspoonful of gelatin softened in two teaspoonfuls of cold water, dissolve over hot water until soft, then add to the cucumber and mix well. In the bottom of each individual mold, place a half walnut meat, then pour in the cucumber mixture. Serve turned out.

BONERS

MY CABIN

By ANNE CAMPBELL

I SHALL have a cabin with no pictures in it. There will be wide windows gleaming in the sun. Every oaken frame will hold a landscape in it. Changing in the morning and the setting sun.

Nothing ever painted will excel the splendor Of the lovely scenes that bless my weary gaze. Dawn will come with fingers silver-tipped and slender. And the midnight moon will leave her misty ways.

Paintings cannot tempt me when the hills and valleys March outside my window in eternal pride. From my hilltop cabin where the east wind dallies. I shall see the treasures Time has defied.

That in its beginning the American newspaper was a very small affair. The Boston News-Letter, one of the first newspapers published in America, April 24, 1704, was printed on half a sheet of paper 7 1/2 x 12 1/2 inches. It contained one advertisement—that of the proprietor.

"British Isles"

Seen at the fashion promenade of the Dress Operators' League of America in New York was this symphony in brown and white called "British Isles." It is a summer costume consisting of a white linen crash three-quarter-length coat, brown linen shirt, linen tie and brown felt hat.

"Napoleon of the Stump"

The title "Napoleon of the stump" was frequently applied to William McKinley, who had a supposed resemblance to the Emperor Napoleon and who, during the Harrison campaign, traveled more than 16,000 miles and in his own first campaign made over 300 speeches.

Cleveland Girls Learn Men's Work

Girls wearing overalls and boys busting around in kitchen aprons is the contradictory situation that greets visitors to morning classes of the Emerson junior high school in Cleveland, Ohio. While the boys are fixing salads and beating cake batter, the girls take possession of the work benches where they are just as proud of their accomplishments as the boys are of their domestic science.

GRAND JURY WON'T INDICT MR. MELLON

It Finds No Basis for Tax Evasion Charges.

Pittsburgh.—A federal grand jury ignored the government's charges that Andrew W. Mellon failed to pay sufficient 1931 income taxes, and returned a "no bill" after hearing the government's story.

The grand jury reported to Judge Robert M. Gibson that it found no basis for the government's charges that Mellon failed to pay all his income taxes in 1931.

The jury's action ends the year old investigation, which followed charges made on the floors of both houses of congress. Its effect is probably final, although the government still can re-submit the case to a grand jury any time before the statute of limitation expires on March 15, 1933.

The foreman of the jury was William Beeson, a bank clerk. Among others of the jury were five laborers, two farmers, two engineers, two mechanics, two clerks, one plumber, one carpenter, a lumber dealer, and a writer.

Following the announcement of the grand jury's refusal to indict, Mr. Mellon issued the following statement:

"I am, of course, gratified that I have been exonerated by a jury of my fellow citizens. The fact that the grand jury reached a sound conclusion, notwithstanding the unusual methods pursued in my case, is proof of the good sense and fairness of the American people."

On the eve of the grand jury probe Mr. Mellon charged he was being "railroaded" by the federal government, and declared he had been given no opportunity, as customary, to refute the government's claim. He said he had overpaid the government rather than evade his taxes, as charged by the government.

WASHINGTON BRIEFS

The federal government has notified the Veterans' National Rank and File organization that it will provide quarters and food for delegates to the organization's national convention at Fort Hunt, Va., this year, but never again.

Four million people filed income tax returns last year, compared with less than three and a half millions in 1932. Commissioner of Internal Revenue Guy T. Helvering announced.

A real "chiseler" was found in the office of Recovery Administrator Johnson. He is Reuben Nakian, a sculptor, who was making a plaster cast of the general. His ultimate aim is a bronze bust.

A petition on behalf of Samuel Insull, Jr., of Chicago, was filed with the board of tax appeals asking a re-determination of a 1931 income tax claim of $13,253 against him.

The World's fair import bill, lifting customs restriction on foreign articles brought into this country for exhibition at A Century of Progress at Chicago, passed the house by unanimous consent.

China Decrees Death for Traffickers in Narcotics

Shanghai, China.—Death will be the penalty hereafter for traffickers in narcotics under an edict issued by Chiang Kai-Shek, military overlord of the national government. Officials found encouraging the manufacture, sale or transport of narcotics will share a similar fate, the decree stipulates.

Accused of Making $36,000 in Bogus Bills

Cincinnati, Ohio.—Herman P. Stephenson, former Cincinnati held in Newark, N. J., is charged with having counterfeited approximately $36,000 in spurious $5 notes in a warrant signed by Harry H. Buck, secret service agent here.

Hoopeston Mayor Gets 50c, 8 Aldermen 25c for Year

Hoopeston, Ill.—Mayor Walter Trego got 50 cents and the eight aldermen 25 cents each for serving for the last year. The salaries set when the town was incorporated in 1877 have not been changed. The only effort to do so was defeated.

Mother Gets 10 Years for "Hopeless" Slaying

Polson, Mont.—Mrs. Thelma Jackson, a divorcee, listened passively in the District court as she was sentenced to serve ten years in prison for killing her last born, a child she thought "would never have a chance."

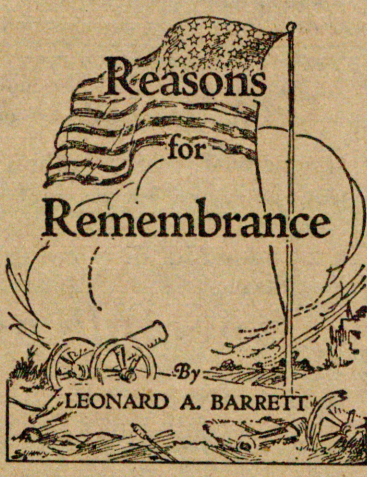

Demands Big Navy for Japan

Tokyo.—Admiral Mineo Osuni, minister of the navy, announced that Japan, facing rising opposition abroad, must throw off treaty restrictions and proceed with construction of a navy equal to any. The naval minister carried his fight to people of the empire.

Procter Estate to Widow

Cincinnati.—Subject only to certain charitable obligations, Mrs. Jane Elisabeth Procter, widow of Col. William Cooper Procter, was named sole heiress to his $50,000,000 estate.

Salute for Soldier Dead

MEMORIAL day is an occasion of various aspects and it may be approached from many different psychological angles. A day of war, it brings to mind the horror of fields of carnage. The imagination conjures up brave armies locked in struggle, battling for sacred national ideals, willingly offering all that men may give that those ideals may survive and prosper. The broken earth, the tortured sky, the shriek of shells, the rattle of musketry in repeated volleys, the cries of the wounded and dying—all these terrible sights and sounds are represented in the tragic picture, fearsome to ponder. But over them, canceling them, runs the thought of the heroism they imply, the grandeur of the sacrifice they entail.

A day of peace, it likewise prompts renewed thanksgiving for the security, harmony and freedom which the dead have earned for the living. The heart, conscious of the debt, throbs with acknowledgement of the benefaction which they have bestowed, the blessing which they have conferred, and the mind, no less aware of the obligation, soberly faces the problem of preventing further armed strife, of banishing fratricidal conflict from the world.

Wreath of Flowers for the Dead Soldiers in France.

A day of patriotism, it challenges the attention for its demand upon each citizen, its implied prescription that each individual career shall be of use and value to the national welfare. Perhaps it is in this regard that it has most compelling significance—it summons the rank and file of the land to labor and live in obedience to the noblest of ideals.

A day of mourning, it calls for sorrow for the lost. But a day of joy, it promotes exultation in the knowledge that when need was for immolation there were men courageous enough and gallant enough to respond.

Above all a day of consecration, a day of prayer, a day to pledge renewed allegiance, it gives opportunity for the expression of brotherhood and love for living and dead alike.

Reasons for Remembrance

IN CEMETERIES both small and large will assemble groups of patriotic citizens for the purpose of decorating the graves of those who fell in war. Brave veterans they were. Some fought with weapons which today seem to us rather crude. The army rifle of the Twentieth century is an immense improvement over the gun of the Civil war. Rapidly firing machine guns, poison gas, submarines, torpedoes and all the implements of modern warfare were to them unknown.

Like all the wars of history the Civil war was fought by young men. The following table indicates the ages of the Unionist soldiers who fought in the Civil war: Fourteen years of age and under, 2,111; fifteen years of age and under, 104,987; sixteen years and under, 231,651; seventeen years and under, 844,891; eighteen years and under, 1,151,438; twenty-one years and under, 2,159,798; twenty-five and over, 46,626; forty-four and over, 16,071. The total number of enlisted men was 2,778,304, three-fourths of whom were under twenty-one years of age. "The power which hurled slavery from its throne was young men dreaming dreams by patriots' graves."

We cannot think of Decoration day without the portrait of Abraham Lincoln presenting itself vividly before us. What this country might have suffered without his leadership, only the Good Providence knows. The purpose of the war, as Lincoln conceived it, was not to free the slave, although that was a factor in the case; the principal reason for the war was to save the Union. The war of 1776 taught the world to know us; the war of 1812 taught us to know ourselves. The first won for us our independence, the latter our self-respect and solidarity.

Plutarch writes: "The fortune of all good men is that their virtue rises in glory after their death, and that the envy which any evil man may have conceived against them never survives the envious." So do we remember those whose supreme sacrifice has cemented into one nation our United States of America. All honor to their memory as we place the laurel wreath alike upon the graves of the khaki, the blue, and the gray.

Some of the trenches dug by the Confederate and Union armies during the battle on Kenesaw mountain are still visible.

Novel War Memorial of Chunks of Coal

UPPER Silesia's monument to those killed in the World war is built entirely of huge polished blocks of coal. This novel material was chosen as a particularly fitting memorial to the thousands of miners from the district who gave their lives for their country. A number of blocks, each weighing more than a ton, are placed one above the other in the form of a sarcophagus, and are crowned by a tremendous helmet, also of coal.

"Remember the Bride," Advice for the Groom

Some time ago there appeared, under the authorship of Francis F. Beirne, a set of "Warnings to Bridegrooms."

Advice was given the man about to make the transition from bachelor to benedict on many of the difficulties he would have to contend with.

He was advised about his engagement and his bachelor dinner. How to survive to his wedding day and how to survive that. He was warned about the pitfalls of a honeymoon, such as ocean travel and too-expensive resorts. And he was given good sound advice in the matter of his finances.

All the details of getting married being conscientiously warned against, I searched diligently for warnings on the most important detail in a man's marriage, which, in my opinion, was the bride! It developed, however, that these "warnings to Bridegrooms" were entirely from the man's point of view in which the bachelor dinner and avoiding embarrassment at the wedding entered very largely; the bride not at all!

Hence it is up to this column to amend the "Warnings to Bridegrooms" as from the woman's point of view.

The bachelor's dinner and how to slip the clergyman his fee may be matters of excruciating importance—at the moments of their importance! But these soon pass. There remains then the permanent item which will have the greatest effect upon the success or failure of the bridegroom's marriage. That is the bride. And one warning which anyone with the bridegroom's interest really at heart must feel impelled to express is, "Remember the bride."

Remember that without the bride you would be no bridegroom. Remember that in this wedding which you want so keenly to get over and done with, she also has an important share. And remember, above all things, how you got her to be that bride! Don't make the mistake of assuming that being a bridegroom is rightly the dividing line between what you have made her think you are and what you really are. If when you remember the methods of your courtship, you feel that marriage is no time or place for such nonsense, don't reveal that too suddenly! Let your bride down easy. Be diplomatic in adapting her to realities. Don't drop all the illusion at once. There are limits to what a bride can take on the chin.

The trouble with brides is that they believe everything you have told them. They have built you up, with your assistance, of course, into a most attractive and satisfying dream of a husband. With years and experience they can develop resignation. But you can't expect that at one fell swoop. So keep some control on your revelations. The picture will have to change, of course, from lover to husband. But use some discretion.

Remember—and this is without doubt the most valuable item in this woman's advice to bridegrooms—there is no truth in the old saying that "Once you've caught a car, you've got it, and that's all there is to it." That is a fiction in which lies the greatest danger to the success of that wedding at which you are the bridegroom. Women have discovered that, but not the bridegrooms. So I'm telling you—and here's luck to you!

Pulitzer Prizes

One doesn't compete for the Pulitzer prizes. The poetry award, according to the will of the late Joseph Pulitzer, is made for the best book of verse by an American author published during the year. Usually the publisher submits to the committee awarding the prizes what he considers the best book of verse he has published during the current year. The committee then is the judge, and the awards are announced some time in the spring.

MORE THAN 50% LONGER NON-SKID MILEAGE

IN THE NEW

Firestone

HIGH SPEED TIRE FOR 1934

THE new Firestone High Speed Tire for 1934 is the greatest tire Firestone has ever built. With its wider, flatter tread, greater thickness, deeper non-skid, more and tougher rubber, and greater non-skid contact with the road, you get more than 50% longer non-skid mileage.

This new development is made possible by the Firestone patented process of Gum-Dipping, whereby the cotton fibers inside the high stretch cords are soaked and coated with pure liquid rubber. This provides greater strength, safety and blowout protection.

Firestone engineers pioneered and developed the first successful balloon tire in 1923, and it is only natural that Firestone would lead in the further development of tire construction to meet the demands of the high-powered high-speed cars of today.

The new Firestone High Speed tires for 1934, have already proved their worth by constant testing on the Firestone fleet of test cars over all kinds of roads and highways throughout the United States.

Firestone High Speed tires are further subjected to the most severe tests known on the greatest proving ground in the world—the Indianapolis Speedway. In fact, Firestone Tires have been on the winning cars in the annual 500-Mile Indianapolis Race for fourteen consecutive years—conclusive evidence of Firestone's outstanding leadership in tire development and construction.

was replaced by Valetta, who has pitched but 3 innings since practice games have been played this year.
Mokena did some timely hitting, and put over three runs with the help of an error in the 8th inning.
This gave them a 3 run lead, going into the 9th inning.

Tinley opened up an attack that looked for a minute like the tide would turn. One run in and men on second and third, Nielsen went to bat in place of Ryan, but he failed to connect, and this put two out, and Rennie up.

After looking things over, Rennie sent a long fly that sure looked like it was tagged for at least 3 bases, but good old Walsh raced back in deep center, and got down on his knees, and pulled the ball in his lap, for the 3rd out. This finished a ball game worth the time of any fan who enjoys this sport.

There was many snappy plays by both teams, but one in particular was made by Fletcher, who raced from deep left field to center and pulled down a long fly with one hand, while running cross-ways, of the ball. The crowd gave Freddie a big hand, for it was a pretty catch.

John Balaz of Mokena and Geo.
Price of Tinley Park umpired the game, and are to be congratulated for their fairness, which is appreciated by the crowd as well as the players.

Sunday May 27 Tinley Park opens

Park a baseball team worth seeing,

The game starts at 3 p. m. DST.
Wednesday, Decoration Day, on May 30th, Tinley Park, will play
